

amendment that's before us, the original bill, that was the compromise. The compromise was to even allow them to be able to treat glaucoma and to be able to do the oral pharmaceuticals. That was the compromise. But we want to go one step further. We want to go one step further. I think what we...what I need...what I will do...in fact, what I will do is because it is going to be confusing to the body, I will withdraw my amendment to the amendment, but I want the body to understand if you agree with amendment 2391, the Moore amendment, you are making a decision regardless of all of the education that's in there, forget that, you are making a conscious decision of putting it under the Board of Optometry. That's what this amendment will do. You can't separate it, it's in there, all or nothing. What I suspect is if we don't have a Schellpeper amendment offered at this point, and obvi...and maybe that the Senator is not going to and offer it at a later time, what I am suggesting is we should go ahead and vote this amendment...after I withdraw my amendment to the amendment, we vote the Moore amendment down. Senator Schellpeper, then at some point, will have his amendment which will have all of the education back in, all of those things will be there and it will be under the Board of Medicine. And then we'll have a little discussion of how that board needs to be made up. That's the process we need to follow. But this amendment to the amendment was offered on my behalf to make sure the body did not just think, oh, this is a compromise, this is all worked out, this is all...this is greased, we're ready to go. It's not. This Moore amendment is not. And if I have accomplished one thing, maybe we'll at least think a little bit more clearly on what we really have before us. And I thank the body for their indulgence and at this point I withdraw the amendment to the amendment.

PRESIDENT MOUL: Thank you, Senator Bernard-Stevens. The amendment to the amendment is withdrawn. Mr. Clerk, do you have items for the record?
